Ms. BARNUM (Prince of Humbugs,) is back among his old neighbors at Bridgeport, and apparently as much prized as when he was thought to be a millionaire. He is in good health, and looks vastly like a well-fed Englishman. I have known him for ten years as a neighbor, and, without pretending to be entirely a judge of his accomplishments as a show-man, I can vouch for him as a kind friend and most hospitable host. In his family he has always shown himself most judicious and affectionate, and seems to be reaping the rewards of his care in the respect and love of his children. Some readers may laugh at this serious word about BARNUM, but I speak from many years of kind intercourse, and am in earnest. I join in the wish so general here, that BARNUM may be up in the world again.

How Dueling was Stopped in Illinois .- In meralizing upon dueling, the Chicago Press and Tribune informs us how the law became a dead letter in Illinois, by reviving the history of the first and only duel ever fought in that State. In the year 1820 Alphonse Stewart and William Bennett fought with rifles in St. Clair country, and Stewart fell, mortally wounded, on the first fire. Bennett made his escape into Arkansas, where he remained two His whereabouts were discovered; he was arrested, brought back, indicted, tried, convicted of murder, and executed. Governor Bond was besieged days and weeks by the barbarian disciples of the code, clamorous for the wretch's pardon. But he closed his door against petition and entreaty, and William Benuett dangled at a rope's end in the presence of some thousands, of spectators, who took in a great moral lesson. This was the first and last duel ever fought on the soil of Illinois, and it effectually rushed out all respect for the bloody code in that

MEETING OF KOSSUTH AND GARIBALDI.-A COTespendent of the New York Times says that these two champions of Hungarian and Italian indepenence met for the first time at the international dinner, given by Consul Sanders, in London, 1854, to Mr. Buchanan and the European Republican leaders. In the course of the evening Kossuth's eloquence became the theme of eulogy. Rising with modest grace, Kossuth replied, ever elegant and appropriate in the social hour as he is grand and persuasive on public occasions. At the close of his response, he public occasions. At the close of his "Gentlemen, erelaimed, with electric earnestness, "Gentlemen, would you know what I think the most eloquent speech of modern times?" He repeated in suppres-sed tones the words: "Soldiers! for the love you bear your country I offer you war, hunger, thirst, cold, and death. Who accepts the terms let him follow me ! There is the orator !" he said, waving his hand towards him, whose intrepid impetuosity now rings through the world. Garibaldi, taken by surprise, was, for a few moments, quite overcome with emotion, but he mastered himself, and made a beautiful and soldierly reply.

Before parting that night, all gathered into a circle once more. Mazzini took the guitar, and striking the chord with the hand of a master, accompanied with thrilling burst of patriotic songs, in which the Herzen, the Russian Republican, Worcell, the Pole, Pulsky Ledru and Rollin—all that band of glorious and accomplished spirits, joined with a ferror never to be forgotten by those who witnessed and shared it. PROGRESS AND PROSPERITY OF SAN FRANCISCO .-Since the cessation of the Fraser river hegira, property has gone up wonderfully in San Francisco. In the vicinity of the junction of Post, Market and Montgomery streets, and, indeed, in all that region of the city, the value of the property has increased near one hundred per cent. in the last twelve months. Some speculators in real estate have made fortunes during that time. Prudent men always take advanged. during that time. Prudent men always take advantage of popular panics and delusions, and buy property securely and quietly when everybody else is rushing away from a place like San Francisco, with the sublime certainty that the revulsion will give CLOTHING. them always a fair, and often a large profit, on their investments. Property has increased in value all over the city, and the best judges in such matters after that from this time forward there will be no checks to the rapid growth of the city, and the in-creased value of real estate. They base this upon the general supposition that no panics or excitements can ever again affect its value as in times past, and that the people have at last an abiding faith in the steady progress of San Francisco, which nothing can ever again shake. San Francisco, too, occupies now a position relatively to this part of the world similar to that held by London, Paris and New York, to their respective surroundings. The world of capital, wealth, fashion and business centers at the above places, which represent those people and countries in each of the above respects. So with San Francisco: it is the center, the capital of the world of the Pacific, and illustrates the tone and condition of the whole western coast of America. This position it will always hold, and must continue to increase in imortance in all that makes a city rich and populous. This is apprehended now in its fullest extent by our people, and nothing can ever again shake their belief in the grandeur of its future destiny. Situated on the finest bay in the world; backed by the most productive mineral and agricultural country known to man; looking out across the Pacific upon the coasts of countries containing a third of the population of he globe, no superior geographical position could be magined. These facts are no longer regarded as the dreams of enthusiasts. They are looked upon as certais, and hundred who a year ago were in doubt es to retaining their homesteads in a city where, to quote the words of sensible men during the Fraser river excitement, "the grass would grow in the street.," are now reaping the reward of their faith in San Francisco. The past is known. There is nothing in the future too brilliant to predict.—Alta. FIGHTING THE TIGER IN CHICAGO-$28,000 WON AT FARO.-A few nights since, while the honest and peaceful citizens of this great metropolis were dozing upon their pillows, and those only walked whom vice or crime kept from slumber, a curious scene was transpiring in the inner apartment of one of the most fashionable and well known faro banks in this city. The parties present were not numerous. At one side of the table, and at the right of the dealer, sat a certain well-known Kentucky gentleman, now a resident of this city, and very popular as an auctioneer. Opposite to him were two clerks from dry good stores on Lake street. At the foot of the table were three young gentlemen connected with certain of our city banks, and four professional fancy men. The game commenced at four o'clock in the afternoon. It was now past three o'clock in the morning, and the contest was kept up with undiminished vigor. Fortune early in the evening had declared for the gentleman on the right of the dealer ; and although luck occa-

He had up to this time won $18,000. The perspiration stood in beaded drops upon the brows of the young men, and as they nervously laid down their counters on the squares, their hands shook with an motion they could not conceal. Even the practised cooluess of the professional gamblers deserted them, and they gnawed their lips in undisguised anxiety. The Kentucky gentleman suddenly laid down checks to the amount of $6,000, and as the dealer began to draw out the cards from the silver box in which they lie, left the table, and walked to the sideboard. The cards are dealt, and the $6,000 are lost! This reduces the winnings of the Colonel to $12,000. A temporary cessation of the game takes place. A hasty supper is taken; the Colonel proposes to play no more. The others object; they are firm in their belief that luck has changed, and that they will win their losses, which have been fearfully heavy, back again. The Colonel consents, and the game is re-sumed. It is now five o'clock. Day has begun to break, but the thick curtains of the apartment keep out the strengthening light.

until his winnings were enormous.

The young men consult among themselves. The Colonel has won $2,000 again. He is now winner to the tune of $14,000. They have $10,000 between them. They put funds together, place it in the hands of one of their number, and direct him to play until he loses it all, or until he wins back what they have already lost, the game goes on. The Colonel wins $1,000— then loses $3,000. Hope springs again in the breasts of the young men. Their representative makes a bet of $5,000. The company gather around with des-perate interest. The cards fall from the box—they ose. Their funds are reduced to $6,000-for they have lost some to the bank, besides that paid to the first $1,000--then $500. He loses steadily. His last $500 is reached. He is pale as death—his pallor is reflected in the faces of his comrades. He places their last stake on the cloth. The dealer hesiates-but only for a moment. The cards are dealtthe Colonel wins-the $500 is shoved over to him and $500 more from the bank-and the play is over. The Colonel rises with $28,000 winnings in his pocket. The others leave the table, having lost nearly that sum—the bank itself coming out nearly even.

The next day the fortunate Colonel settled $28,000 upon his wife, and swore off from the gambling hells.

Whether he will keep his word remains to be seen. What the young gentlemen did who, in one night, lost $28,000, remains to be seen. But can $28,000 be lost at a single sitting, at such work as this, by such men as these, without serious consequences? The scene we have related actually did occur. There are plenty of men who will read these lines, who will know how true it is. Is a community in a healthy condition when such things occur ? There are nearly a dozen gambling rooms in this city, kept in first-rate style, and doing a business like this every night. Their location is well known—they are easy to be found. The police have orders not to disturb them, and they flourish like green bay trees.

PAY To-DAY AND TRUST TO-MORROW .- You see it everywhere ; it, or its doctrine : 'No trust'-- 'terms cash.' It stares at you from walls and fences ; it salutes you from little cards ; it challenges you from great placards : ' no trust.' There is a sort of solemn joke in that 'trust to-morrow.' The fellow that invented it had pienty of money, and laughed in his sleeve when he wrote it, for he had read somewhere in the poets :

*To-morrow never yet, On any human being rose or set." Some poor creature or other, that spelled the notice out ' to-day,' returned ' to-morrow' in her inno-cence, and claimed the promised ' trust,' to the infinite delight of a filbert-heart clerk. It is a good thing for you, no doubt, this ' pay to-day ;' a good thing for everybody, that gets enough to do, and enough for doing it. Debt 'is the old man of the sea,' and the world is full of Sinbads. It warps the staunchest of men from his uprightness, as the sun does the iron bridge of Menai. That he owns neither houses nor lands, stocks nor shares, is not the worst of it, for he does not own himself. He belongs to somebody else; not his body, indeed, but his actions, his opinions, his will. If he looks smilingly, his owners are after him, for he must have been making money. If he takes a holiday, they embitter its memory by wondering how 'some folks'—meaning him—'can afford it, for they cannot.' His good wife 'turns' his coat, and brushes it, and inks the white seams-some of them-and his debtors are all indignant at the new coat he has purchased .-They do not hunt him-not they-they only haunt him. And then the facetiousness with which they denominate the document they thrust at him, 'a little bill !' Do they think the pet adjective will make it easier to pay? Or do they mean to admin-ister a covert rebuke, that since it is so little, it ought not to have been so long ? Reader, pay as you go. It will save many a harrassing thought, and much unnecessary trouble to yourself and to others.
